Copyright Information

© Copyright helps professional photographers protect the integrity of their work.

It is important you're aware that my digital files and printed products are protected by copyright. Pickature Photography retains the ownership and copyright of the photographs taken and supplied to you at all times.

Copyright law states photographers own the images they create and the rights to control how these images are used or reproduced. These exclusive rights come in the form of legal protection, the ability to sell, commission or transfer my work, along with other rights.

You, the Client, have the right to adjust and print for personal use and for any non-commercial purpose at any print facility ALL the digital photo files that you receive from the booked photography session/wedding. You may also share these images on your personal social media platforms, we only ask that you attribute your posts to mention Pickature Photography.

If you wish to use the images for any purpose other than the above you will need to obtain my expressed written permission.

I would like to take this opportunity once again, to thank you for choosing Pickature Photography as your photographer. I feel very blessed and grateful to have had the opportunity to work with you. It's a joy to create beautiful photos for you and your family to treasure for years to come.
